

Decolonial Alliances

Bibliography compiled in 2019 by Joana Joachim, Research and Exhibition coordinator at ArtexTe, for the 10th edition of ArtexTe on Tap.

In the settler-colonial context of the place known as Canada, histories of colonization and slavery on this land are often overlooked. Similarly, the historical mistreatment of migrants of colour is disregarded while it continues to affect their everyday lives. BIPOC communities have resisted independently and collaboratively against domination and erasure for decades, even centuries. Thinking through these complex relationships is crucial for deep sustainable change.

This tenth edition of ArtexTe on Tap proposed to complicate our understanding of decolonization by challenging the binary perception that these issues involve primarily white relationships with Indigenous peoples. What does solidarity with Indigenous peoples look like for people who've been forced into a settler colonial context? How do we contend with the legacies of slavery and forced displacement while still fighting for decolonization and the respect of Indigenous rights on this land?

This bibliography highlights texts by BIPOC writers thinking through decolonization and solidarity.
